Health Nugget

"Data were analyzed from the 1997–2001 National Health Interview Survey (NHIS) linked to death certificate data in the National Death Index. Older adults who reported guideline-concordant ST had 46% lower odds of all-cause mortality than those who did not (adjusted odds ratio: 0.64; 95% CI: 0.57, 0.70;  $p < 0.001$ ). Although a minority of older US adults met ST recommendations, guideline-concordant ST is significantly associated with decreased overall mortality. All-cause mortality may be significantly reduced through the identification of and engagement in guideline-concordant ST interventions by older adults." Ref. Is strength training associated with mortality benefits? A 15 year cohort study of US older adults. Preventive Medicine, Vol. 87, June 2016, Pages 121-127
